Visionary Mural Co.

Artist's Statement

I paint murals. It's what I am meant to do. Really big, really beautiful murals. Murals on the walls or on the ceilings, in homes or businesses, in the public sphere or with community participation. Murals that are more than paintings; murals that create environments. Murals that make my clients happy. I love that. I love to listen to what clients say, what they feel, what they think, and who they are. I love to figure out what really works for them; what their tastes are, how their space feels, what kind of art suits them, what style fits their architecture and décor, and what they want in their hearts to find in the space I am creating. Then I give them exactly what they want - even if they weren't able to visualize it before that. That's where the "visionary" part of my company name comes from – inventing visual surroundings that create the atmosphere, energy, and environment people want. Whether I am painting in a home or a business, outside in a public park, or inside a community center, I collaborate with people to create beautiful artwork. It's what I do. It's what I love.
